2 Pennsylvanians Given Hero Medals

Pittsburgh, May 6 (AP)—Bronze medals for heroism today were awarded by the Carnegie hero fund commission to two Pennsylvanians—Lee W. Danley, 16-year-old West Finley schoolboy, and Fred A. Riddle, 33, a policeman, of Route 5, Crafton.

The commission said young Danley rescued Harry B. Kimmel, 17, from an enraged bull July 19, 1943. When the bull knocked Kimmel down and butted him several times, Danley attacked the animal with a pitchfork and distracted its attention until Kimmel could escape.

QUESTION MEN AND WOMEN IN TRUNK MYSTERY

Chicago, May 6 (AP)—Police questioned more than a dozen men and women today as they hunted for additional clues in the mysterious death of a woman whose semi-nude body was shipped from Chicago to Los Angeles in a trunk. Search also was intensified for the man who arranged the shipment.

Packed in salt and a mass of blood soaked clothing, the body was discovered by a Los Angeles Railway Express clerk yesterday when he opened the trunk after he had seen brine seeping from it.

No injury was found on the body, but Los Angeles authorities said further examinations were to be made to determine whether the victim had been poisoned, died from a blow or been smothered. They described her as between 30 and 40 years old.

Police Lt. Philip Brietzke said detectives had established that the trunk was shipped early last Sunday morning by a man about 42 years old. He was accompanied by the railroad station by a 13-year-old boy.

Find Hotel Towels

Brietzke said the man had told Charles R. Heniff, a rate clerk at a Railway Express agency in the station, the trunk contained his personal belongings and he had given the name of John Lopez as both shipper and addressee. The officer related that Heniff told him one of the cords around the trunk had broken and the man borrowed a hammer and wire to repair it.

The trunk was sent COD, Brietzke said Heniff reported, after the clerk had told the man the charge for the 245-pound shipment, which had been valued at $50, would be $25. He added the man told him he intended to travel to Los Angeles by bus.

Earlier investigation of the grim mystery turned to a small hotel near Chicago's loop, when towels from the hostelry were found in the trunk. Police said they had learned that a man and woman registered as "John Lopez and wife" had lived there last winter, leaving two months ago without leaving a forward address.

26 Bombing Trips Over Continent "Routine" Says Lt. Smith; Has DFC, Medal

The "Jezebel," who started her bombing career by getting into trouble with Mayor LaGuardia when she buzzed the Yankee stadium in New York, is still carrying the battle to the Germans, but her crew, who less than a year ago joined the ship at Walla Walla, Washington, are all safely back in the United States, enjoying their first home leave since they became a "team" and headed for the battle fronts.

First Lt. James A. Smith, son of Commissioners' Clerk and Mrs. Clarence C. Smith, Littlestown R. 1, co-pilot of the ship, has been back in the U. S. for a week and is spending his leave with his parents before reporting to Atlantic City to be re-assigned to further duty.

Lt. Joseph "Little Joe" Wheeler, who piloted the ship when it got into trouble with New York authorities, is back at Fresno, California, at his home and the rest of the crew is scattered over the United States with their friends and relatives.

"Just Routine" Lieutenant Smith, wearing the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, tells his friends that the 26 missions he made over occupied Europe were "just routine."

The last two trips were as tail gunner-formation critic for his squadron. One of the trips he was as formation critic and tail-gunner for the commandant of his unit, a general who as the "old man" of the group is 35. The remaining members of the Eighth Air Force unit to which Lieutenant Smith is attached average a little over 20 years of age.

"Altitude flying is a young man's game," Lieutenant Smith explains. "At high altitudes a man is useful only as long as his system is able to use pure oxygen. A man's system can stand pure oxygen only so long, depending on the man, and the older a person gets the less capable, ordinarily, he is to use the oxygen."

120 Holes In Ship

The 26 trips over the enemy lines were just routine, Lieutenant Smith insists. Of course on one trip the ship returned with 120 holes in her, "but most of them were just small holes caused by flak fragments." On one other occasion a flak fragment severed three cables and cut through a two-inch pipe just two inches above Lieutenant Smith's head, "but it was a miss," and on another occasion a rocket bomb went through the elevator of the ship, "but we were lucky, it did not explode."

From five miles up, where the bombers do their work, there is no feeling of exultation or of hatred for the enemy, Lieut. Smith pointed out. "Usually you are so busy you don't have time to think much about it, and then you can not see anything that is happening on the ground. From where we bomb you cannot see whether the town you are bombing is badly damaged or not. Usually the tail gunner and ball turret operator report back whether the bombs hit, but by that time you are going away from there as fast as you can."

Radio Operator Hurt "One thing I can tell you though—we are always glad to get rid of the bombs."

As tail gunner, Lieutenant Smith had "two shots at German planes, but I missed both times. They were pretty far away and were leaving after having made their run. I only got in some short bursts."

Only one man, the radio operator, was hurt during the time the Jezebel suffered 120 punctures. A 20 millimeter fragment lodged in his lung, "but he has recovered completely from it by now."

Other Planes Downed

The longest trip was to Augsburg, Germany, a nine-hour grind that included nearly two hours of climbing for altitude before the flight started.

LT. J. A. SMITH

"Plenty of times" other bombers on missions with the Jezebel failed to return. Sometimes a ship would drop behind and disappear eventually from view. Others would burst into flames and finally be abandoned by their crews.

One plane exploded not 500 yards from Smith's ship, "One second it was there and the next it just did not exist. It was the most complete job of disintegration you ever saw. I did not even see any pieces fall."

Met Two Gettysburgians

The most exciting raid was over Kiel while bombing dock installations. There Smith's group was un-

Here And There News Collected At Random

The following is reprinted from "Hobbies" magazine:

"School children of Illinois have contributed nickels and dimes to the amount of $60,000 for the purchase of a manuscript of President Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

"The historical document has been turned over to the Illinois State Historical Library for permanent custody. The manuscript was specially written out by Lincoln in March, 1864, to be bound with the manuscript copy of Edward Everett's address on the same occasion of the dedication of the Gettysburg National Cemetery. Bound with them also was a history of the battle, pictures of its outstanding generals and other mementoes connected with the battle.

"The manuscript just presented to Illinois' State Historical Society is the first which includes the words 'Under God'—words which Lincoln used in his address as he delivered it, but which were not in the two preliminary drafts, both now in the Library of Congress.

"Lincoln made two other copies of the address, the Bancroft (now unrecorded) and the Bliss, which is owned by a Baltimore family.

"The check for $60,000 which purchased the document was turned over by Vernon L. Nickell, state superintendent of public instruction, to Charles J. Roubik, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, trustee of the estate of the collector who several years ago purchased the manuscript for $150,000."

This brings to mind an old thought advanced by your reporter on many occasions that Gettysburg should have a public Civil War museum. Of all places Gettysburg is the most logical for a museum in which should be housed a Lincoln collection as well as souvenirs and mementoes of the Civil War.

We sincerely believe that with little effort a good collection of Lincolniana and Civil War relics could be assembled . . . that present owners of many pieces could be induced to place their collection in a Gettysburg museum, eventually leading into the largest collection in the world.

A friend of ours, who had a collection of more than 2,000 Civil War books, once told us that he would consider giving his collection to Gettysburg if he could be convinced that they would be preserved. He has since passed away and his estate disposed of. It is likely that there are many others in the country who would like to see their collection preserved in Gettysburg.

CANNERS STUDY LABOR NEEDS

Labor needs for 1944 and labor recruitment plans were discussed at a special meeting of the Pennsylvania Cannery Association held Thursday in the Hotel Richard McAllister. About seventy-five persons were in attendance.

URGES GUARD UNIT TO HELP DRAFT-AGE MEN

"The greatest thing you can do for the young men approaching draft age is to get them into your organization and give them the excellent military drill and training you have been getting," Lieut. C. C. Bream, Jr., USNR told members of the county company of Minutemen at their drill Friday evening at the armory.

"The training you obtain here, aside from all patriotic and other considerations, is of utmost value because it gives the men military bearing, and increasingly at the present time military bearing is the one thing that gives a man in the armed forces a chance to get ahead."

"While I am most familiar with Navy pre-flight students, I believe the same thing holds true for all other branches of the service—the man with military bearing is the one who gets ahead the fastest, the one who is chosen for ratings, or who is given the chance for further opportunities when offered in competition with other men who may be just as well qualified physically and mentally."

Helpful Knowledge

"Thus the best thing you can do for the young men coming of draft age is to give them all the military drill you can. Their knowledge of how to execute the basic commands will give them first chance at opportunities that they would not obtain if they did not have military bearing," he added.

Lieut. Bream congratulated the group on its appearance and told them, "you older fellows know, just as I have learned in the Navy, that the drills and marches are good exercise and are worthwhile for their own sake if for no other reason." A son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bream, Sr., East Middle street, Lieut. Bream has been stationed at Chapel Hill pre-flight training station two years. He left today for Chapel Hill after spending a brief leave here.

The Minutemen began a series of weekly drills Friday night by marching to Reynolds woods where Mess Sergeant George Martin served a meal of ham and bean soup, and then marched back to the armory for further drill instruction. The drills will continue weekly during the spring in preparation for summer activities. Captain C. Arthur Brame was in command, with 49 present.

Aerial Assault On Europe Now In Fourth Week

By DWIGHT PITKIN
Associated Press War Editor

The Allied offensive of the skyways against the perimeter defenses of fortress Europe went into the fourth week today with a smash at the Nazis' much vaunted secret installations in northwestern France following another telling blow against the Balkans.

British Undersecretary for Air Capt. H. H. Balfour declared that for all practical purposes some 138,000 Allied airmen already have opened the main battle of the invasion.

Despite stormy weather, nearly 250 U. S. Liberator bombers with an equal number of escorting fighters pounded Hitler's Atlantic wall emplacements in the Pas-de-Calais department of France today.

Breach Huge Italian Dam

British Halifaxes and Wellingtons bombed rail yards and oil storage tanks at Campina, 10 miles northwest of Ploesti in Romania, last night in a renewal of the aerial drive against the Balkans in support of Russian forces massing for another offensive. U. S. heavy bombers, striking into Romania yesterday, bombed the rail and oil center of Ploesti and the railway city of Turnu-Severin.

The Allies dealt a surprise blow to the Germans in Italy yesterday by breaching the Pescara dam and spilling flood waters over enemy communications and defenses 10 miles from the Adriatic end of the long-dormant Eighth Army front.

Allied headquarters in Naples said the Germans were reported to have moved out all Italian civilians beyond the Fifth Army's main front for a depth of 20 miles on the opposite side of the peninsula. This meant the evacuation of several sizable towns.

Nazis Worry Over Invasion Ports

The Germans were worried over invasion from the south and the east as well as the west. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel following a tour of Mediterranean defenses declared the attack "must be reckoned as imminent." He boasted that the German soldier "armed with new weapons, is ready for the utmost" and asserted the Allies "will come up against many great surprises." German reports by way of Stockholm said the Russians had massed forces "on an enormous scale" in old Poland for a new drive on the path to Berlin.

Brietzke said the man had told Charles R. Heniff, a rate clerk at a Railway Express agency in the station, the trunk contained his personal belongings and he had given the name of John Lopez as both shipper and addressee. The officer related that Heniff told him one of the cords around the trunk had broken and the man borrowed a hammer and wire to repair it.

The trunk was sent COD, Brietzke said Heniff reported, after the clerk had told the man the charge for the valued shipment would be $25. He added the man told him he intended to travel to Los Angeles by bus.

Earlier investigation of the grim mystery turned to a small hotel near Chicago's loop, when towels from the hostelry were found in the trunk. Police said they had learned that a man and woman registered as "John Lopez and wife" had lived there last winter, leaving two months ago without leaving a forward address.

26 Bombing Trips Over Continent "Routine" Says Lt. Smith; Has DFC, Medal

The "Jezebel," who started her bombing career by getting into trouble with Mayor LaGuardia when she buzzed the Yankee stadium in New York, is still carrying the battle to the Germans, but her crew, who less than a year ago joined the ship at Walla Walla, Washington, are all safely back in the United States, enjoying their first home leave since they became a "team" and headed for the battle fronts.

First Lt. James A. Smith, son of Commissioners' Clerk and Mrs. Clarence C. Smith, Littleton R. 1, co-pilot of the ship, has been back in the U. S. for a week and is spending his leave with his parents before reporting to Atlantic City to be re-assigned to further duty.

Lt. Joseph "Little Joe" Wheeler, who piloted the ship when it got into trouble with New York authorities, is back at Fresno, California, at his home and the rest of the crew is scattered over the United States with their friends and relatives.

"Just Routine"
Lieutenant Smith, wearing the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, tells his friends that the 26 missions he made over occupied Europe were "just routine."

The last two trips were as tail gunner-formation critic for his squadron. One of the trips he was as formation critic and tail-gunner for the commandant of his unit, a general who as the "old man" of the group is 35. The remaining members of the Eighth Air Force unit to which Lieutenant Smith is attached average a little over 20 years of age.

"Altitude flying is a young man's game," Lieutenant Smith explains. "At high altitudes a man is useful only as long as his system is able to use pure oxygen. A man's system can stand pure oxygen only so long, depending on the man, and the older a person gets the less capable, ordinarily, he is to use the oxygen."

120 Holes In Ship

The 26 trips over the enemy lines were just routine, Lieutenant Smith insists. Of course on one trip the ship returned with 120 holes in her, "but most of them were just small holes caused by flak fragments." On one other occasion a flak fragment severed three cables and cut through a two-inch pipe just two inches above Lieutenant Smith's head, "but it was a miss," and on another occasion a rocket bomb went through the elevator of the ship, "but we were lucky, it did not explode."

From five miles up, where the bombers do their work, there is no feeling of exultation or of hatred for the enemy, Lieut. Smith pointed out. "Usually you are so busy you don't have time to think much about it, and then you can not see anything that is happening on the ground. From where we bomb you cannot see whether the town you are bombing is badly damaged or not. Usually the tail gunner and ball turret operator report back whether the bombs hit, but by that time you are going away from there as fast as you can."

Radio Operator Hurt

"One thing I can tell you though—we are always glad to get rid of the bombs."

As tail gunner, Lieutenant Smith had two shots at German planes, but he missed both times. They were pretty far away and were leaving after having made their run. I only got in some short bursts.

Only one man, the radio operator, was hurt during the time the Jezebel suffered 120 punctures. A 20 millimeter fragment lodged in his lung, "but he has recovered completely from it by now."

Other Planes Downed

The longest trip was to Augsburg, Germany, a nine-hour grind that included nearly two hours of climbing for altitude before the flight started.

"Plenty of times" other bombers on missions with the Jezebel failed to return. Sometimes a ship would drop behind and disappear eventually from view. Others would burst into flames and finally be abandoned by their crews.

One plane exploded not 500 yards from Smith's ship. "One second it was there and the next it just did not exist. It was the most complete job of disintegration you ever saw. I did not even see any pieces fall."

Here And There News Collected At Random

The following is reprinted from "Hobbies" magazine:

"School children of Illinois have contributed nickels and dimes to the amount of $60,000 for the purchase of a manuscript of President Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

"The historical document has been turned over to the Illinois State Historical Library for permanent custody. The manuscript was specially written out by Lincoln in March, 1864, to be bound with the manuscript copy of Edward Everett's address on the same occasion of the dedication of the Gettysburg National Cemetery. Bound with them also was a history of the Battle, pictures of its outstanding generals and other mementoes connected with the Battle.

"The manuscript just presented to Illinois State Historical Society is the first which includes the words 'Under God'—words which Lincoln used in his address as he delivered it, but which were not in the two preliminary drafts, both now in the Library of Congress.

"Lincoln made two other copies of the address, the Bancroft (now unrecorded) and the Bliss, which is owned by a Baltimore family.

"The check for $60,000 which purchased the document was turned over by Vernon L. Nickell, state superintendent of public instruction, to Charles J. Roubik, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, trustee of the estate of the collector who several years ago purchased the manuscript for $150,000."

This brings to mind an old thought advanced by your reporter on many occasions that Gettysburg should have a public City War museum. Of all places Gettysburg is the most logical for a museum in which should be housed a Lincoln collection as well as souvenirs and mementoes of the Civil War.

We sincerely believe that with little effort a good collection of Lincolniana and Civil War relics could be assembled. . . . that present owners of many pieces could be induced to place their collection in a Gettysburg museum, eventually leading into the largest collection in the world.

A friend of ours, who had a collection of more than 2,000 Civil War books, once told us that he would consider giving his collection to Gettysburg if he could be convinced that they would be preserved. He has since passed away and his estate disposed of. It is likely that there are many others in the country who would like to see their collection preserved in Gettysburg.

CANNERS STUDY LABOR NEEDS

Labor needs for 1944 and labor recruitment plans were discussed at a special meeting of the Pennsylvania Cannery Association held Thursday in the Hotel Richard McAllister. About seventy-five persons were in attendance.

It was indicated at the meeting that a Jamaican work camp will be established in York county to provide labor for the harvesting of beans, tomatoes, corn and other crops. About 300 field workers would be quartered at the proposed camp.

A number of men familiar with the labor problem addressed the meeting. Among them was Truman Thompson, Harrisburg, rural industries supervisor for the War Manpower Commission. Major Tisdale, of the Third Service Command, spoke on plans for providing prisoner of war labor. J. E. McCord, Emergency Farm Labor director, spoke on the use of local field labor and on the work being done to bring in Jamaicans to help with the harvest.

Happer Payne, manpower director of the National Canneries Association, Washington, outlined cooperative advertising recruitment plans for labor and spoke on the use of posters and newspaper advertising. Carlton F. Sturdy, New York city, who heads the speaking service of the American Can Company, appeared through the courtesy of that company.

James R. Stuart, Somerset, president of the Pennsylvania Cannery Association, presided at the meeting, and William A. Free, York, served in his capacity as executive secretary of the State association. Among those present were Wirt S. URGES GUARD UNIT TO HELP DRAFT-AGE MEN

"The greatest thing you can do for the young men approaching draft age is to get them into your organization and give them the excellent military drill and training you have been getting," Lieut. C. C. Bream, Jr., USNR told members of the county company of Minutemen at their drill Friday evening at the armory.

"The training you obtain here, aside from all patriotic and other considerations, is of utmost value because it gives the men military bearing, and increasingly at the present time military bearing is the one thing that gives a man in the armed forces a chance to get ahead."

"While I am most familiar with Navy pre-flight students, I believe the same thing holds true for all other branches of the service—the man with military bearing is the one who gets ahead the fastest, the one who is chosen for ratings, or who is given the chance for further opportunities when offered in competition with other men who may be just as well qualified physically and mentally."

Helpful Knowledge

"Thus the best thing you can do for the young men coming of draft age is to give them all the military drill you can. Their knowledge of how to execute the basic commands will give them first chance at opportunities that they would not obtain if they did not have military bearing," he added.

Lieut. Bream congratulated the group on its appearance and told them, "you older fellows know, just as I have learned in the Navy, that the drills and marches are good exercise and are worthwhile for their own sake if for no other reason." A son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bream, Sr., East Middle street, Lieut. Bream has been stationed at Chapel Hill pre-flight training station two years. He left today for Chapel Hill after spending a brief leave here.

The Minutemen began a series of weekly drills Friday night by marching to Reynolds woods where Mess Sergeant George Martin served a meal of ham and bean soup, and then marched back to the armory for further drill instruction. The drills will continue weekly during the spring in preparation for summer activities. Captain C. Arthur Brame was in command, with 49 present.

Aerial Assault On Europe Now In Fourth Week

By DWIGHT PITKIN
Associated Press War Editor

The Allied offensive of the skyways against the perimeter defenses of fortress Europe went into the fourth week today with a smash at the Nazis' much vaunted secret installations in northwestern France following another telling blow against the Balkans.

British Undersecretary for Air Capt. H. H. Balfour declared that for all practical purposes some 138,000 Allied airmen already have opened the main battle of the invasion.

Despite stormy weather, nearly 250 U. S. Liberator bombers with an equal number of escorting fighters pounded Hitler's Atlantic wall emplacements in the Pas-de-Calais department of France today.

Breach Huge Italian Dam

British Halifaxes and Wellingtons bombed rail yards and oil storage tanks at Campina, 10 miles northwest of Ploesti in Romania, last night in a renewal of the aerial drive against the Balkans in support of Russian forces massing for another offensive. U. S. heavy bombers, striking into Romania yesterday, bombed the rail and oil center of Ploesti and the railway city of Turnu-Severin.

The Allies dealt a surprise blow to the Germans in Italy yesterday by breaching the Pescara dam and spilling flood waters over enemy communications and defenses 10 miles from the Adriatic end of the long-dormant Eighth Army front.

Allied headquarters in Naples said the Germans were reported to have moved out all Italian civilians beyond the Fifth Army's main front for a depth of 20 miles on the opposite side of the peninsula. This meant the evacuation of several sizable towns.

Nazis Worry Over Invasion Ports

The Germans were worried over invasion from the south and the east as well as the west. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel following a tour of Mediterranean defenses declared the attack "must be reckoned as imminent." He boasted that the German soldier "armed with new weapons, is ready for the utmost" and asserted the Allies "will come up against many great surprises." German reports by way of Stockholm said the Russians had massed forces "on an enormous scale" in old Poland for a new drive on the path to Berlin.

GANDHI RELEASE DEPRIVES HIM OF MARTYRDOM

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst
Mahatma Gandhi's release from internment by the government of India, on the grounds of his serious illness, is bound to be widely interpreted as calculated to deprive him of the martyrdom which would come from dying while imprisoned.

Certainly without attempting to read the government's mind, we can say that Gandhi's liberation is an act of wisdom, for when his death does come it will sweep India with emotion like a prairie fire. One handles sentiment like that with discretion.

The little Mahatma is by far the most influential individual among the four hundred millions of that vast sub-continent. To understand this you must know that his chief hold on his people rests in his spiritual leadership, apart from his political dominance of the all India Congress. Countless lowly millions regard him literally as divine, and try to worship him, despite his efforts to discourage this.

Unworried By Death

It is with reluctance that one discusses in cold print the death of a man who still lives. However, I'm well enough acquainted with Gandhi to know that if he were informed that his passing was under discussion he would merely smile and crack one of his dry jokes. The Mahatma, veteran on many hunger-strikes, has walked with death too many times to let the final call worry him.

The great question in most minds, and especially in the calculations of the New Delhi government, is what effect Gandhi's death will have (1) on the general population and (2) on the grave political crisis growing out of the battle for independence from England. We know that living he's been so powerful that he might have inspired revolution, had he so willed and had non-violence not been one of his cardinal principles. What then will his death mean to India when it comes?

Widespread Mourning

Well, of course there will be mourning throughout the land. And one seems to see a long line of weeping thousands following the Mahatma's bier to the burning ghat for cremation in accordance with the Hindu faith. Predictions about an emotional country are unsafe, but if his people abide by his teachings there will be no demonstration of violence, though there's always danger that passions may get out of hand in isolated spots at such a time.

Gandhi's death will remove one of the great leaders of the masses through the ages. It will take away an influence which, despite its mistakes, has worked wonders for the social and moral uplift of his people. Still, it shouldn't cause demoralization among his followers, for others will carry on, though they cannot fill his place.

I should say that his successor in political leadership will be his great friend and disciple, Jawaharlal Nehru. This 55 year old Brahmin (the highest Hindu caste) is one of the most brilliant of the Indian leaders and next to Gandhi is the most powerful political figure in the country. Nehru has deliberately kept his own striking personality in the background so as not to detract from the Mahatma whom he reverences above all men. Nehru is popular and is highly respected by the British.

Another Leader

Another Nationalist leader of whom we should hear much is Rajagopalachari. He is one of the moderates and is one of the best liked men in India, not only by his own people but by the British. He stands for compromise among the warring Indian factions and with the British government. His daughter, by the way, is the wife of Gandhi's son, Devadas.

I am sure many British officials feel that the chances of a settlement of the Indian political crisis will be better with the removal of Gandhi's powerful influence, which has held out against compromise that the government has felt essential to reasoned progress towards India's sovereignty. Perhaps the chances of compromise will indeed be better, for the Mahatma is a very stubborn person. However, that may be, as one who has known Gandhi and his India for many years your columnist feels impelled to record the very definite impression that when death takes the little Mahatma it will be removing one of the great—and despite any mistakes—good men of history.

26 BOMBING

der attack by fighters for a half hour but "all got out safely."

Two Gettysburg men were among the group met by Smith in England. One was a radio operator, Wendel Patton, the other a photo intelligence officer named Rohr, who attended Gettysburg college.

Relations with the English run smoothly, but there is not too much socializing between the Americans and the English people. The Englishmen Smith has met were "not shy and reserved, far from it," the county aviator said. He and his fellow officers lived in barracks put up by the English that were dry and comfortable. The English weather however is damp and chilly and caused some discomfort. "It's bad flying weather."

60-Below Zero

Sometimes the crew would not fly for weeks, then they would fly everyday when weather permitted. During the first part of his stay in England, he was the busiest. "We got quite a bit of our training in England, after we arrived there," he says.

Holland is the "prettiest" of the countries over which he has flown, with its well cultivated fields set out in geometric fashion. Germany, too, seems well farmed and clean. The German Alps are beautiful — "but we don't get much time to see the scenery or anything, else. I have yet to see anyone reading the Reader's Digest while flying."

German anti-aircraft fire is heavy "and accurate up to five miles," while the German airforce is "still pretty tough." The cold is extreme at high altitudes, dropping on one occasion to 60 below and usually about 45 degrees below zero.

A graduate of Gettysburg high school in 1941, Lieutenant Smith immediately joined the Air Force and graduated from Moore Field, Texas, May 24, 1941. At Walla Walla, Washington, his crew was assembled and included "Little Joe" Wheeler, who "just turned 20 this month"; Lt. Harold C. Christiansen, of New York, the navigator; Lt. Al Woolter, of California, the bombardier; and the following sergeants: Allen, of Georgia, engineer; Burroughs, of North Carolina, assistant engineer; Curley, Pittsburgh, radioman; Knapp, Washington state, the assistant radioman; Vardero, Boston, armorer, and Magner, Texas, assistant armorer.

The list of missions on which Lieutenant Smith flew reads like a time table of the present battle of Germany. Starting with Bremen, Germany, the list includes, Salangen, Germany; St. Jean Angley, France; Emden, Germany; Bremen, Germany; Osnabruck, Germany; Beauvoir, France, Kiel, Germany, twice; Oeschersleben, Germany; Gueschart, France; Le Mesnil and Puchervin, France; Frankfurt, Germany; Brunswick, Germany; Wilhelmshaven, Frankfurt, Germany; Chateau Dun, France; Leipzig and Bernburg, Germany; Halberstadt, Germany; Stuttgart and Augsburg, Germany; Frankfurt, Germany; Augsburg, Germany; Oberpfaffenhofen, Germany; Wilmers, France; Frankfurt, Germany, again, and Berlin, Germany.

Lieutenant Smith, who was promoted to first lieutenant March 14, hopes to be assigned to a fighter plane when he returns to duty.

Soldiers' Ballots Are Counted Friday

Count of the 30 soldiers' ballots Friday afternoon by the county election board made no changes in the final results of the primaries, April 25.

Only one contest was still in doubt, with a possibility of the soldiers' vote changing the majority of 20 held by Mrs. Esther M. Hayberger over Mrs. Evelyn Swope. Neely for county Republican vice chairman, but only 16 soldiers voted on the issue, with 12 giving their vote to Mrs. Neely and six to Mrs. Hayberger.

The final vote for the county GOP vice chairmanship now stands at Mrs. Hayberger, 1,550; Mrs. Neely, 1,536.

Two of the ballots were spoiled and were not counted. Eight of the soldiers' votes were cast by Democrats and 20 by Republicans.

Carlton F. Sturdy, nationally known lecturer and writer on merchandising and food subjects, addressed the CHM club at its regular monthly meeting in the Biglerville plant cafeteria of the C. H. Musselman company Friday evening.

Beginning with the front-line importance of food in time of war, Mr. Sturdy presented a picture of the tremendous task which confronts the nation in supplying adequate supplies to our armed forces, those nations receiving lend-lease aid and our own civilian population. How the food industry is successfully carrying out the program and what the civilian can expect in regard to his food supplies was graphically described in the talk.

BULLETINS

Bombay, India, May 6 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, was released today from the Aga Khan's summer palace in Poona where he had been detained since August, 1942.

The government earlier announced its decision to release the 74-year-old leader unconditionally in view of the condition of his health. Gandhi had failed to recover after an attack of malaria. The British had confined him for political activity which they regarded as hampering India's resistance to Japan.

AFL Stands Pat On Lewis' Application

Philadelphia, May 6 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor is still ready to welcome home John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers, but not on his terms.

More than a year after he applied for readmission, Lewis and the federation leadership appeared to be deadlocked as tight as ever over the question of jurisdictional lines.

President William Green announced that the executive council had reaffirmed "without change" its January decision on the UMW application. In that decision the council said it viewed the application in a "sympathetic way" and proposed that the United Mine Workers "return with the jurisdiction they had when they left" the AFL.

Lewis "wants in" as the UMW is now, including the controversial district 50 into which he has organized a dozen crafts which conflict with AFL jurisdictions. His alternative request is for an AFL charter giving him jurisdiction over chemicals as well as coal mining.

GANDHI RELEASE DEPRIVES HIM OF MARTYRDOM

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst
Mahatma Gandhi's release from internment by the government of India, on the grounds of his serious illness, is bound to be widely interpreted as calculated to deprive him of the martyrdom which would come from dying while imprisoned.

Certainly without attempting to read the government's mind, we can say that Gandhi's liberation is an act of wisdom, for when his death does come it will sweep India with emotion like a prairie fire. One handles sentiment like that with discretion.

The little Mahatma is by far the most influential individual among the four hundred millions of that vast sub-continent. To understand this you must know that his chief hold on his people rests in his spiritual leadership, apart from his political dominance of the all India Congress. Countless lowly millions regard him literally as divine, and try to worship him, despite his efforts to discourage this.

Unworried By Death

It is with reluctance that one discusses in cold print the death of a man who still lives. However, I'm well enough acquainted with Gandhi to know that if he were informed that his passing was under discussion he would merely smile and crack one of his dry jokes. The Mahatma, veteran on many hunger-strikes, has walked with death too many times to let the final call worry him.

The great question in most minds, and especially in the calculations of the New Delhi government, is what effect Gandhi's death will have (1) on the general population and (2) on the grave political crisis growing out of the battle for independence from England. We know that living he's been so powerful that he might have inspired revolution, had he so willed and had non-violence not been one of his cardinal principles. What then will his death mean to India when it comes?

Widespread Mourning

Well, of course there will be mourning throughout the land. And one seems to see a long line of weeping thousands following the Mahatma's bier to the burning ghat for cremation in accordance with the Hindu faith. Predictions about an emotional country are unsafe, but if his people abide by his teachings there will be no demonstration of violence, though there's always danger that passions may get out of hand in isolated spots at such a time.

Gandhi's death will remove one of the great leaders of the masses through the ages. It will take away an influence which, despite its mistakes, has worked wonders for the social and moral uplift of his people. Still, it shouldn't cause demoralization among his followers, for others will carry on, though they cannot fill his place.

I should say that his successor in political leadership will be his great friend and disciple, Jawaharlal Nehru. This 55 year old Brahmin (the highest Hindu caste) is one of the most brilliant of the Indian leaders and next to Gandhi is the most powerful political figure in the country. Nehru has deliberately kept his own striking personality in the background so as not to detract from the Mahatma whom he reverences above all men. Nehru is popular and is highly respected by the British.

Another Leader

Another Nationalist leader of whom we should hear much is Rajagopalachari. He is one of the best liked men in India, not only by his own people but by the British. He stands for compromise among the warring Indian factions and with the British government. His daughter, by the way, is the wife of Gandhi's son, Devadas.

I am sure many British officials feel that the chances of a settlement of the Indian political crisis will be better with the removal of Gandhi's powerful influence, which has held out against compromise that the government has felt essential to reasoned progress towards India's sovereignty. Perhaps the chances of compromise will indeed be better, for the Mahatma is a very stubborn person. However, that may be, as one who has known Gandhi and his India for many years your columnist feels impelled to record the very definite impression that when death takes the little Mahatma it will be removing one of the great and—despite any mistakes—good men of history.

Soldiers' Ballots Are Counted Friday

Count of the 30 soldiers' ballots Friday afternoon by the county election board made no changes in the final results of the primaries, April 25.

Only one contest was still in doubt, with a possibility of the soldiers' vote changing the majority of 20 held by Mrs. Esther M. Hayberger over Mrs. Evelyn Swope Neely for county Republican vice chairman, but only 12 soldiers voted on the issue, with 12 giving their vote to Mrs. Neely and six to Mrs. Hayberger.

The final vote for the county GOP vice chairmanship now stands at Mrs. Hayberger, 1,550; Mrs. Neely, 1,536.

Two of the ballots were spoiled and were not counted. Eight of the soldiers' votes were cast by Democrats and 20 by Republicans.

26 BOMBING

der attack by fighters for a half hour but "all got out safely."

Two Gettysburg men were among the group met by Smith in England. One was a radio operator, Wendel Patton, the other a photo intelligence officer named Romer, who attended Gettysburg college.

Relations with the English run smoothly, but there is not too much socializing between the Americans and the English people. The Englishmen Smith has met were "not shy and reserved, far from it," the county aviator said. He and his fellow officers lived in barracks put up by the English that were dry and comfortable. The English weather however is damp and chilly and caused some discomfort — "it's bad flying weather."

60 Below Zero

Sometimes the crew would not fly for weeks, then they would fly everyday when weather permitted. During the first part of his stay in England, he was the busiest. "We got quite a bit of our training in England, after we arrived there," he says.

Holland is the "prettiest" of the countries over which he has flown, with its well cultivated fields set out in geometric fashion. Germany, too, seems well farmed and clean. The German Alps are beautiful — "but we don't get much time to see the scenery or anything else. I have yet to see anyone reading the Reader's Digest while flying."

German anti-aircraft fire is heavy "and accurate up to five miles," while the German airforce is "still pretty tough." The cold is extreme at high altitudes, dropping on one occasion to 60 below and usually about 45 degrees below zero.

A graduate of Gettysburg high school in 1941, Lieutenant Smith immediately joined the Air Force and graduated from Moore Field, Texas, May 24, 1941. At Walla Walla, Washington, his crew was assembled and included "Little Joe" Wheeler, who "just turned 20 this month"; Lt. Harold C. Christiansen, of New York, the navigator; Lt. Al Woolter, of California, the bombardier, and the following sergeants: Allen, of Georgia, engineer; Burroughs, of North Carolina, assistant engineer; Curley, Pittsburgh, radioman; Knapp, Washington state, the assistant radioman; Vardero, Boston, armorer, and Magner, Texas, assistant armorer.

The list of missions on which Lieutenant Smith flew reads like a time table of the present battle of Germany. Starting with Bremen, Germany, the list includes, Salingen, Germany; St. Jean Angely, France; Emden, Germany; Bremen, Germany; Osnabruck, Germany; Beauvoir, France, Kiel, Germany, twice; Ochtersleben, Germany; Gueschart, France; Le Mesnil and Puchervin, France; Frankfurt, Germany; Brunswick, Germany; Wilhelmshaven, Frankfurt, Germany; Chateau Dun, France; Leipzig and Bernburg, Germany; Halberstadt, Germany; Stuttgart and Augsburg, Germany; Frankfurt, Germany; Augsburg, Germany; Oberpfaffenhofen, Germany; Wismers, France; Frankfurt, Germany, again, and Berlin, Germany.

Lieutenant Smith, who was promoted to first lieutenant March 14, hopes to be assigned to a fighter plane when he returns to duty.

GHS TRACKMEN CAPTURE 10TH CIRCUIT TITLE

Coach Mel Dry's Gettysburg high track team regained the championship of the annual Southern Pennsylvania Interscholastic conference, surrendered last year for the first time to Hanover, by nosing out favored Hanover Friday evening at Waynesboro.

The Maroons tabbed 52 points to top the Nighthawks who accounted for 47 tallies. Carlisle was third with 24, Chambersburg fourth with 22 and Waynesboro fifth with 9.

Friday's performance gave the Maroons their 10th conference title in the 11 annual events, last year's loss to Hanover being the only spot on an otherwise flawless record for Gettysburg.

Utecht Sets Record

One new conference record was established. Eugene Utecht, Maroon javelin hurler, tossed the stick for 164 feet, 4 inches to shatter both the meet mark and the Gettysburg high school record. The former conference record was held by Fitzpatrick, Carlisle, who tossed the javelin 162 feet, 3 1/2 inches in 1941.

Five first places fell to the Maroons. In addition to Utecht's winning toss, Russ Howard captured the 220-yard event, Willie Tonsel won the broad jump and the Maroon half-mile relay team composed of March, Schwartz, Altemose and Dorsey raced home in front.

Trophy on Display

A large trophy emblematic of the conference title, presented by the Waynesboro Record Herald newspaper, is now on display in the office of The Gettysburg Times.

Ribbon awards, replacing the former medal awards, will be forwarded next week to those placing in the various events.

The summaries:

Rich Stake For Winner Of Derby

Louisville, May 6 (AP)—Come rain or mud, sunshine and a not-so-favorable track, 19 of the nation's outstanding three-year-olds today awaited post time for the running of the 70th Kentucky Derby with the list of potential starters the biggest in seven years.

America's oldest and premier turf classic, which brings together the romance of tradition, color, and the thrill of a sensational stretch finish, probably will be witnessed by a crowd in excess of 60,000. It is the greatest one-day color spot in sport. Nothing in racing ranks with it in adventure and breath-taking excitement.

Not all of the potential 19 starters were expected to go to the post at 5:15 p. m. (CWT) for the mile and one quarter test but if all should the race will be the richest Derby in history with a gross value of $88,200. The owner of the triumphant thoroughbred will haul down a pot of $66,700.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 6 (AP)—Milwaukee's baseball-minded burghers, who have seen plenty of sensational stunts, should have some brand new experiences when Casey Stengel adds his talents to those of Marine Bill Veeck. . . . All they need is to get Joe Engel there and call it "Hellzapoppin'." . . . The Washington Redskins shouldn't have much trouble with the "rules" next fall. Shorty Ray, the pro league's rules adviser, learned his football from Coach Dud De Groot's father at Lewis institute (now a part of Illinois Tech) some 40 years ago. . . . It cost only $5 (or less) to see the Sal Bartolo-Phil Terranova feather-weight title fight at Boston last night. In New York the word "title" alone would be worth $16.50 tops.

TODAY'S DERBY TIP

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Stir Up, the favorite, is quartered in the small stall from which Shut Out went to win the 1942 derby.

A ROOKIE A DAY

Edgar Busch, Athletics' shortstop—a 300 hitter, which is a pretty good recommendation for any rookie. . . . He broke into pro ball with Lafayette, La., in 1938 and moved up until he played most of last season at Elmira, N. Y., where he hit .303. Got a late-season trial with the A's, batting .294 in four games, and started off well this spring, though he's been alternating with Bob Wilkins lately. . . . At any rate, Busch is out of the bushes.

SPORTSPOURRI

Wilbert Robinson was offered a contract with a Yankee farm club but turned it down. He's no relation to the former Dodger manager, but a 16-year-old local boy who has done some good pitching for City College of New York. . . . The "700" bowling clubs of America, composed of guys who have rolled 700 scores, starts its national telegraphic tournament tomorrow. . . . Prosperity note: Freddie Corcoran reports that promoters who used to try to shave the PGA $5,000 minimum purse for golf tournaments now say "we can do better" when he suggests 10 g's. . . . The baseball coach at Power Memorial high school in the Bronx is brother R. B. Power. . . . But what's the use of "all that" power if you don't get the pitching?

SERVICE DEPT.

Chuck Feneback, the Detroit Lions' little halfback, didn't believe the medics when they classed him 4-F. He demanded another examination and now he's in the Marines. . . . The Ottumwa, Ia., Naval Air Station baseball team should do a fair job of base stealing. The Sea Flyer's coach is Lieut. Merle Makeover, who stole 74 sacks for Moline, Ill., in the old Mississippi Valley league in 1925 and Athletic Director Lieut. Jimmy Kitts pilfered 39 in the East Texas league in 1924. . . . Lieut. L. D. Meyer, who played quite a bit of football for his Uncle "Dutch" at Texas Christian and who played baseball for the Detroit Tigers, has been named manager of the Fort Worth, Tex., Army Air Field ball club.

About 4,000,000 extra farm workers are needed in 1944.

GRIMM RETURNS AS PILOT OF CHICAGO CUBS

Milwaukee, May 6 (AP)—Jolly Cholly Grimm left Milwaukee and his American association champions for the road back to Wrigley Field and the pilot's post with the Chicago Cubs today.

But there was promise the brewer faithful would not have long to brood over Grimm's leaving as Casey Stengel, one of the few men whose antics in baseball compare to that of Milwaukee's favorite Dutchman, became boss of the Brewers.

With Stengel, one-time Boston Braves and Brooklyn manager, as his successor, Grimm was read to take over the last place Cubs in time for tomorrow's doubleheader. Yesterday he agreed to fill the post which he formerly held for six years and which was vacated this week by Jimmy Wilson.

Grimm's departure marked the end of baseball's earliest clown combination, Charlie the manager and co-owner of the Brewers with President Bill Veeck. Grimm played the banjo in Veeck's swing band, sang in the executive quartet and with Veeck bounced the Brewers from the cellar to the top of the heap in little more than a year.

PHILS SMACK DODGERS 3-1; GIANTS SLIP

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer
First it was the St. Louis Browns and now it's the Phillies spinning a fancy win streak when they are supposed to be playing dead in the second division.

Freddy Fitzsimmons' mixture of hustling minor leaguers and holdovers from the 1943 seventh place outfit have won five and tied one since their last defeat, April 28. The Yankees, too, have a five-game streak and the Browns have won 12 of 15 games.

Ken Raffensberger, who spent last year with Los Angeles, southpawed his way to a four-hitter and Ron Northey smacked a two-run homer as the rejuvenated Phils shaded Brooklyn, 3-1. It was the first loss for Curt Davis and a happy homecoming for Fitz, whose club could take the lead by beating the Dodgers again today provided Cincinnati tops St. Louis.

Giants In Rut

The New York Giants are in a rut. They lost their fifth in succession, a 3-2 verdict to Boston. Damon Phillips' rapped home Steve Shemo to break up an 11-inning fray and ruin Ace Adams' return to the bullpen after three starting efforts.

Nick Etten was Mr. Big in the Yanks' 11-7 triumph over the Red Sox, clubbing Tex Hughson and Joe Wood, Jr., for a homer, double and single, batting in two runs and drawing four walks to boost his average to .488. Etten now has hit safely in 11 consecutive games since Yank Terry and Mike Ryba "horse-collared" him opening day.

Hughson, who used to beat the New York club by tossing his glove on the mound, was one of seven starting pitchers who failed to go the route in yesterday's four games. Raffensberger was the only exception.

Lose Margin

Both Early Wynn of Washington and Jesse Flores of the Athletics were rapped hard and often, but Ossie Bluege of the Nats was able to come up with better relief pitching and a seven-run spurt in the last two innings for an 11-8 verdict.

The A's led 8-4 going into the eighth but the Nats tied it and won in the final frame when Stan Spence and Joe Kuhel exploded home runs. Johnny Sullivan, Washington shortstop, collected four hits and batted in four runs.

Cold weather froze out the Pittsburgh-Chicago and Cincinnati-St. Louis games in the national and wet grounds postponed the St. Louis-Cleveland and Chicago-Detroit American league tilts.

Runs—Epps, St. Louis, 13.

Runs batted in—Stephens, St. Louis, 14.

Hits—Myatt, Washington, 21.

Doubles—Cullenbine, Cleveland, 7.

Triples—Gutteridge, St. Louis, 3.

Home runs—Lindell and Etten, New York

Not all of the potential 19 starters were expected to go to the post at 5:15 p. m. (CWT) for the mile and one quarter test but if all should the race will be the richest Derby in history with a gross value of $88,200. The owner of the triumphant thoroughbred will haul down a pot of $66,700.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 6 (AP)—Milwaukee's baseball-minded burghers, who have seen plenty of sensational stunts, should have some brand new experiences when Casey Stengel adds his talents to those of Marine Bill Veck. . . . All they need is to get Joe Engel there and call it "Hellsapoppin'."

The Washington Redskins shouldn't have much trouble with the rules next fall. Shorty Ray, the pro league's rules adviser, learned his football from Coach Dud De Groot's father at Lewis institute (now a part of Illinois Tech) some 40 years ago. . . . It cost only $5 (or less) to see the St. Bartolo-Phil Terranova feather-weight title fight at Boston last night. In New York the word "title" alone would be worth $16.50 tops.

TODAY'S DERBY TIP

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Stir Up, the favorite, is quartered in the small stall from which Shut Out went to win the 1942 derby.

A ROOKIE A DAY

Edgar Busch, Athletics' shortstop—a 300 hitter, which is a pretty good recommendation for any rookie. . . . He broke into pro ball with Lafayette, La., in 1938 and moved up until he played most of last season at Elmira, N. Y., where he hit .303. Got a late-season trial with the A's, batting 294 in four games, and started off well this spring, though he's been alternating with Bob Wilkins lately. . . . At any rate, Busch is out of the bushes.

SPORTSPOURRI

Wilbert Robinson was offered a contract with a Yankee farm club but turned it down. He's no relation to the former Dodger manager, but a 16-year-old local boy who has done some good pitching for City College of New York. . . . The "700" bowling clubs of America, composed of guys who have rolled 700 scores, starts its national telegraphic tournament tomorrow. . . . Prosperity note: Freddie Corcoran reports that promoters who used to try to shave the PGA $5,000 minimum purse for golf tournaments now say "we can do better" when he suggests 10 g's. . . . The baseball coach at Power Memorial high school in the Bronx is brother R. B. Power. . . . But what's the use of all that power if you don't get the pitching?

SERVICE DEPT.

Chuck Fenebrock, the Detroit Lions' little halfback, didn't believe the medics when they classed him 4-F. He demanded another examination and now he's in the Marines. . . . The Ottumwa, Ia., Naval Air Station baseball team should do a fair job of base stealing. The Sea Flyer's coach is Lieut. Merle Makeever, who stole 74 sacks for Moline, Ill., in the old Mississippi Valley league in 1925 and Athletic Director Lieut. Jimmy Kitts pilfered 39 in the East Texas league in 1924. . . . Lieut. L. D. Meyer, who played quite a bit of football for his Uncle "Dutch" at Texas Christian and who played baseball for the Detroit Tigers, has been named manager of the Fort Worth, Tex., Army Air Field ball club.

THE ALMANAC

About 4,000,000 extra farm workers are needed in 1944.

GRIMM RETURNS AS PILOT OF CHICAGO CUBS

Milwaukee, May 6 (AP)—Jolly Cholly Grimm left Milwaukee and his American association champions for the road back to Wrigley Field and the pilot's post with the Chicago Cubs today.

But there was promise the brewer faithful would not have long to brood over Grimm's leaving as Casey Stengel, one of the few men whose antics in baseball compare to that of Milwaukee's favorite Dutchman, became boss of the Brewers.

With Stengel, one-time Boston Braves and Brooklyn manager, as his successor, Grimm was read to take over the last place Cubs in time for tomorrow's doubleheader. Yesterday he agreed to fill the post which he formerly held for six years and which was vacated this week by Jimmy Wilson.

Grimm's departure marked the end of baseball's earliest clown combination, Charlie the manager and co-owner of the Brewers with President Bill Veck. Grimm played the banjo in Veck's swing band, sang in the executive quartet and with Veck bounced the Brewers from the cellar to the top of the heap in little more than a year.

BIGLER DOWNS DILLSBURG 19-3

Biglerville high won its fifth straight baseball victory and its sixth win in seven starts by swamping Dillsburg high 19-3 in a contest played Friday afternoon at Dillsburg.

The Cannons pounded the Dillsburg hurler for 20 safeties, including homers by Guise and McClimens. A 13-run attack in the fourth inning clinched the decision for Biglerville.

Ken Raffensberger, who spent last year with Los Angeles, southpawed his way to a four-hitter and Ron Northey smacked a two-run homer as the rejuvenated Phils shaded Brooklyn, 3-1. It was the first loss for Curt Davis and a happy homecoming for Fitz, whose club could take the lead by beating the Dodgers again today provided Cincinnati tops St. Louis.

Freddie Fitzsimmons' mixture of hustling minor leaguers and holdovers from the 1943 seventh place outfit have won five and tied one since their last defeat, April 28. The Yankees, too, have a five-game streak and the browns have won 12 of 15 games.

An Evening Thought
What can that man fear who takes care to please a Being that is able to crush all his adversaries?—Addison.

Just Folks
HERITAGE
Little fellow, you begin
Where old sages never reached.
Books have gathered wisdom in
They had never taught or preached.
You have toys, now simple seeming,
Past the ancients' wildest dreaming!
Little fellow, you have light
Brighter far than men of old;
Where they walked in darkest light,
Wisdom's splendors you behold.
You have trinkets of precision
Once beyond all ancient vision.
Little fellow, as you go
To your class room, day by day,
You and your companions know,
At your studies and your play,
More than all the long-dead sages
Now adorning history's pages.
Little fellow, this is true:
What was mystery of old
Now is open wide to you,
With its secret fully told.
You have power for achieving
Wise men once thought past believing!

WORDS
Words are man's greatest set of tools. By them he is understood, and by them he is made akin to all the movements, events, and uses through which they bring to him all the knowledge that he owns.
The poet and writer tint words with color and power, and in our everyday lives we use them to build friendships, and to further the commerce of the world. They become our messengers of good will. They are our servants. How very important, therefore, that we use them aright—never allowing them to wound or to cause bitterness or disappointment.
The late Professor Brander Matthews was once challenged to a duel. He accepted and said: "I choose words as my weapons. You lose!"
On the other hand, however, words are often more damaging than swords or pistols. They cut into the heart, and leave wounds that often never heal.
We cherish the words that come to us, wrapped warm and in friendly tone. Those that have uplifted and cheered us we treasure and preserve in our hearts. The bitter word and the unkind word have no place in this beautiful world, for their hurt lingers.
Words were given to us that we might use them intelligently, never wasting them or putting them to an evil end. How wonderfully they have been used by those who have left behind them a glow of light far down the years. How they make true who have uttered them live as though eternal instruments of faith and hope!
Read the Twenty Third Psalm, the Sermon on the Mount, the Book of Revelation in the New Testament, Lincoln's Gettysburg speech, or an inspired poem by Keats, Burns, Bryant, or Rossetti. Read "The Blessed Damozel" by the latter—a poem of sheer beauty. Words—they can be made as undying as the stars—as eternal as Heaven itself!

Expect Senate To Approve Tax Bill
Washington, May 6 (AP)—A House-approved "streamlined" tax bill headed for the Senate today and a welcome as the cure for the March 15 headache that still hangs on.
Given unanimous approval by the House yesterday, the measure is designed to make tax computation as painless as possible. It goes to the Senate Finance committee Monday.
Chairman George (D., Ga.) said he and other Democrats on the committee were disposed to go along with the House version of the bill, which is expected to relieve 39,000,000 of the life-size job of making out returns.

Riding with Russell
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL, Member S. A. E.

Was it your car or your pocket-book that got a springtime overhauling?

A tip-off to high carburetor float level is the engine's habit of not running smoothly. Many motorists have come to think of high float level as merely causing high gas consumption, flooding and excessive accumulations of carbon. Now they should add this new evidence of float trouble. Obviously if there is too high a float level the mixture will be so rich that firing is uncertain and thus uneven. Also the spark plugs will sput and misfire. All in all it has the appearance of ignition trouble, but don't be misled. Incidentally, you can catch it red-handed whenever the car is going through periods of speed change.

Tests Acceleration Pump
If there is any suspicion that the car's failure to accelerate properly is due to inefficiency of the carburetor's accelerator well better take off the air cleaner and make a visual inspection of the situation. Looking into the intake with a flashlight while the engine is switched off you can see fuel being sprayed into the carburetor throat when the throttle is opened rapidly. If the pump is working well there should continue to be spraying for several seconds after the throttle is opened. Make the test after the engine is warmed up so that the automatic choke valve is opened.

If the ammeter ceases to show charge the most likely reason is that one of the generator's brushes has stuck in its holder or otherwise fails to make contact with the commutator.

Inability to remove air from hydraulic brakes by bleeding them usually is due to failure to keep the supply tank filled during the process. Leakage of oil at the timing gear case often is due merely to incorrect tightening of the case nuts. Some cars require a special tool for this job.

If there is a bad eternal leak around the cylinder head gasket the engine won't crank on the first attempt. Water won't compress and thus blocks movement of the pistons. After a few attempts the water may be forced down past the rings into the crankcase.

Gummy formations in the intake manifold will interfere with engine operation, especially during the period when the engine is cold.

Mechanic Joe Speaking
"Have done a lot of work on clutches this spring and, would you believe it, much of this could have been prevented had owners not been so impatient. If they had just let the engine warm up instead of racing right out into traffic, clutches would be in far better shape now."

"I don't blame you for wondering what the clutch has to do with the engine's temperature. That's because we don't take time out to look into the matter. If so, we'd see that in order to get power enough to get under way with a cold faltering engine we must race it. That means abusing the clutch, forcing it to slip and in general putting it to a test for which it was never meant."

Don't be surprised if the engine starts stalling while running well otherwise. It will simply mean that there is wear on the throttle "stop" screw which regulates idling speed. From time to time it is necessary to reset this screw merely to compensate for wear on its head and on the throttle linkage which contacts it. Remember that when you take your foot off the accelerator the throttle return spring pulls the throttle back abruptly and rather forcibly to the idling position. This resulting wear on the parts involved necessitates an occasional change in the setting of the throttle stop screw.

Parking In Gear
Some of the old timers decry the plan of leaving a car parked on a public street in gear. All right for parking lots, for the garage or for out-of-the-way places, they contend, but if there's a chance that another car may bump your parked vehicle there may be trouble ahead. Sudden movement of the car will so shock the gears as to present possibility of breaking them. Personally I have never known of such damage, but old timers say it's so. And of late I have come to have more respect for those whose motor experience runs way, way back. They have forgotten more than most motorists will ever know.

New Cars Would Help
There's another angle on this. Many drivers who leave the car parked in gear do so because the hand brake doesn't hold well. If this brake operates through the rear brake shoes there is further interest in the matter for need for pulling way back on the brake handle indicates that the brake shoes need adjusting. On all cars other than those with the hand brake on the propeller shaft the hand brake linkage operates the same set of rear brake shoes as does the hydraulic system. If the hand brake needs closer adjustment of the brake shoes

In discussions as to reasons for juvenile delinquency I'd like to put in my two cents' worth. It isn't so long ago when one of the pleasures of any kid, from 7 to 70, was to peer through the brightly lighted showroom plate glass to admire the spanking new creations from Detroit. Many a lad who saw his future through those windows declared "That for me when I grow up!" and promptly turned from his companions to head for home instead of a dive. All this has been sadly lacking through the war. Automobile row is drab and decadent. Something about a new car's cleanliness is wholesome and inspiring. It sometimes changes a family's whole viewpoint. Somehow I feel that when the lights go on again along automobile row many a boy and girl will see things differently.

You may not fully realize it but your car may be making you seem a better driver than you really are. This is the case where the car that is at your finger tips is extremely responsive, well balanced as to performance and properly tuned up. ATTENTION
ADAMS COUNTY AND GETTYSBURG MOTORISTS!

The following information has been released by the local Office of Price Administration:

At the present time, through the increased production of all synthetic rubber tires, the Office of the Rubber Director has allocated to this office for rationing additional quota of new passenger tires and tubes. This has made it possible to relax the rationing regulations for new and used passenger tires. This new program will enable persons previously ineligible for tire replacements to apply for Grade III tires. This means that any driver holding a basic ration will qualify. Because of the need for supplying occupational, non-preferred drivers with tires, all holders of supplemental gasoline rations for occupational driving may apply for Grade I replacements.

When tire quota limitations prevent all persons eligible from being issued tires, Boards will be required to determine the relative importance of the tire needs of eligible applicants.

HERITAGE

Little fellow, you begin
Where old sages never reached.
Books have gathered wisdom in
They had never taught or
preached.
You have toys, now simple seeming,
Past the ancients' wildest dreaming!

Little fellow, you have light
Brighter far than men of old;
Where they walked in darkest light,
Wisdom's splendors you behold.
You have trinkets of precision
Once beyond all ancient vision.

Little fellow, as you go
To your class room, day by day,
You and your companions know,
At your studies and your play,
More than all the long-dead sages
Now adorning history's pages.

Little fellow, this is true:
What was mystery of old
Now is open wide to you,
With its secret fully told.
You have power for achieving
Wise men once thought past believing!

Today's Talk

WORDS

Words are man's greatest set of tools. By them he is understood, and by them he is made akin to all the movements, events, and uses through which they bring to him all the knowledge that he owns.
The poet and writer tint words with color and power, and in our everyday lives we use them to build friendships, and to further the commerce of the world. They become our messengers of good will. They are our servants. How very important, therefore, that we use them aright—never allowing them to wound or to cause bitterness or disappointment.
The late Professor Brander Matthews was once challenged to a duel. He accepted and said: "I choose words as my weapons. You lose!"

On the other hand, however, words are often more damaging than swords or pistols. They cut into the heart, and leave wounds that often never heal.
We cherish the words that come to us, wrapped warm and in friendly tone. Those that have uplifted and cheered us we treasure and preserve in our hearts. The bitter word and the unkind word have no place in this beautiful world, for their hurt lingers.

Words were given to us that we might use them intelligently, never wasting them or putting them to an evil end. How wonderfully they have been used by those who have left behind them a glow of light far down the years. How they make those who have uttered them live as though eternal instruments of faith and hope!

Read the Twenty Third Psalm, the Sermon on the Mount, the Book of Revelation in the New Testament, Lincoln's Gettysburg speech, or an inspired poem by Keats, Burns, Bryant, or Rossetti. Read "The Blessed Damozel" by the latter—a poem of sheer beauty. Words—they can be made as undying as the stars—as eternal as Heaven itself!

Expect Senate To Approve Tax Bill

Washington, May 6 (AP)—A House-approved "streamlined" tax bill headed for the Senate today and a welcome as the cure for the March 15 headache that still hangs on.
Given unanimous approval by the House yesterday, the measure is designed to make tax computation as painless as possible. It goes to the Senate Finance committee Monday.
Chairman George (D., Ga.) said he and other Democrats on the committee were disposed to go along with the House version of the bill, which is expected to relieve 30,000,000 of the burdensome job of making out returns.

Out Of The Past
From the Files of the Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times

TEN YEARS AGO

Will Conduct Earle Campaign.—Roy P. Funkhouser has announced his acceptance of the appointment as chairman of the Adams county campaign committee for George H. Earle, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Mr. Funkhouser also announced the appointment of Joseph Maguire of Gettysburg, as secretary of the local Earle-for-governor committee.

New Lockup Is Ready for Its First Customer.—Gettysburg's new lockup in the rear of the fire engine house is now "open for business" and ready to receive its first "customer."

The new four-cell jail was completed Monday and is so well constructed that even John Dillinger would be "safe" behind its bars, local authorities declare.

Burgess Wilbur J. Stallsmith took newspapermen on a personally conducted tour of the lockup and explained its fine points.

Building Home.—J. Herbert Raymond, West Middle street, has broken ground for a new home on West Broadway. Luther I. Sachs is the contractor.

Miss Nellie V. Howe, daughter of Mrs. Rosanna Howe, of Gardner, and James E. Crum, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Crum, of Arendtsville, were married at 8 o'clock, Monday evening, by Rev. E. W. Brindle, at the parsonage.

Silver Wedding.—Mr. and Mrs. Mervin E. Crouse, York street, observed their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary at their home on Sunday.

Prelate Lands Oration Given by Miss Keith.—Miss Nancy Keith, Carlisle street, won second honors in an oratorical contest at Seton high school auditorium, Baltimore, Friday evening. Miss Keith was eulogized by Monsignor Albert Smith.
Miss Keith spoke on "College Students and the Maryland Mission."

County Couple Is Married.—Herbert E. Zepp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zepp, New Oxford R.D., and Miss Ruth Stitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Stitt, near Hunters-town, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. M. Davies, pastor of Great Conewago Presbyterian church, Hunters-town.

Three Operettas Please Audience.—A fair-sized audience attended the second presentation of three operettas by children of the first seven grades in the public schools at Gettysburg high school Friday evening.

Miss Dorothy Brindle directed the three operettas, "Mother Goose's Garden," "The Cruise of the Trundle Bed" and "Under the Sea."

The scenery for "Under the Sea" was made by the children themselves under the direction of Miss Anna Mumper, teacher of art.

County Couple Married Thursday.—Miss Margie E. Cutshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Cutshall, Biglerville R. 1, and J. Blaine Hartman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hartman, Biglerville R. 2, were united in marriage Thursday evening by the Rev. Ernest W. Brindle at the Reformed parsonage in Arendtsville. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cutshall.

Home from Florida.—Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Chapman have returned to Gettysburg for the summer after spending the past six months in Rockledge, Florida.

16 Local Delegates at Y. P. Conference.—Sixteen delegates of the Adams County Young People's council attended the Pennsylvania conference for Young people held in Altoona.
Those attending were: Miss Maud Whiteleather, Allen Atkinson, William Kadel, Fred Troxell, Jean Gardner, Mrs. A. J. Coulson, Eleanor Zinn, Mary Elizabeth Dougherty, Marian Deatrick, Edna Mae Black, Opal Myers, Alan Kinding, William Waters, Fred Howe, Evelyn Bream and Carl Prosser.

A marriage license was issued at the office of Clayton P. Palmer, clerk of the courts, Tuesday afternoon, to Walter P. Plank, Fairfield, and Miss Carrie C. Plank, Freedom township.

Personal.—Lee Mumper, of Lancaster, is spending several days at his home on Baltimore street.

Miss Nancy Keith, Carlisle street, has gone to Annapolis, Maryland, where she was the guest Saturday evening at a hop at the naval academy.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Spahr and family have moved from York street to Fourth street.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Hugh Scott and their son, Hugh, Jr., and C. W. Edwards, of Chicago, were weekend guests of Mrs. Clayton Hoke, West High street.

Riding with Russell

Was it your car or your pocket-book that got a springtime over-hauling?

A tip-off to high carburetor float level is the engine's habit of not running smoothly. Many motorists have come to think of high float level as merely causing high gas consumption, flooding and excessive accumulations of carbon. Now they should add this new evidence of float trouble. Obviously if there is too high a float level the mixture will be so rich that firing is uncertain and thus uneven. Also the spark plugs will sputter and misfire. All in all it has the appearance of ignition trouble, but don't be misled. Incidentally, you can catch it red-handed whenever the car is going through periods of speed change.

Tests Acceleration Pump

If there is any suspicion that the car's failure to accelerate properly is due to inefficiency of the carburetor's accelerator well better take off the air cleaner and make a visual inspection of the situation. Looking into the intake with a flashlight while the engine is switched off you can see fuel being sprayed into the carburetor throat when the throttle is opened rapidly. If the pump is working well there should continue to be spraying for several seconds after the throttle is opened. Make the test after the engine is warmed up so that the automatic choke valve is opened.

If the ammeter ceases to show charge the most likely reason is that one of the generator's brushes has stuck in its holder or otherwise fails to make contact with the commutator.
Inability to remove air from hydraulic brakes by bleeding them usually is due to failure to keep the supply tank filled during the process.

Leakage of oil at the timing gear case often is due merely to incorrect tightening of the case nuts. Some cars require a special tool for this job.

If there is a bad eternal leak around the cylinder head gasket the engine won't crank on the first attempt. Water won't compress and thus blocks movement of the pistons. After a few attempts the water may be forced down past the rings into the crankcase.

Gummy formations in the intake manifold will interfere with engine operation, especially during the period when the engine is cold.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"Have done a lot of work on clutches this spring and, would you believe it, much of this could have been prevented had owners not been so impatient. If they had just let the engine warm up instead of racing right out into traffic, clutches would be in far better shape now."

"I don't blame you for wondering what the clutch has to do with the engine's temperature. That's because we don't take time out to look into the matter. If so, we'd see that in order to get power enough to get under way with a cold faltering engine we must race it. That means abusing the clutch, forcing it to slip and in general putting it to a test for which it was never meant."

Don't be surprised if the engine starts stalling while running well otherwise. It will simply mean that there is wear on the throttle "stop" screw which regulates idling speed. From time to time it is necessary to reset this screw merely to compensate for wear on its head and on the throttle linkage which contacts it. Remember that when you take your foot off the accelerator the throttle return spring pulls the throttle back abruptly and rather forcibly to the idling position. This resulting wear on the parts involved necessitates an occasional change in the setting of the throttle stop screw.

Parking In Gear

Some of the old timers decry the plan of leaving a car parked on a public street in gear. All right for parking lots, for the garage or for out-of-the-way places, they contend, but if there's a chance that another car may bump your parked vehicle there may be trouble ahead. Hero Business Is Tougher Than War

Pittsburgh, May 6 (AP)—"More strenuous than army life in Italy" is how Tech. Sgt. Charles E. (Commando) Kelly describes "this hero business" after 13 days on furlough.

"I haven't had a chance yet to get out for a couple of evenings with my old friends," the winner of the congressional medal of honor said, adding:

"I've been in one parade after another and I've given dozens of speeches before war workers and service clubs. And that's work—a lot harder than fighting in Italy."

The shy, tousle-haired northside boy who became a hero when he eliminated 40 Nazis singlehanded at Salerno asserted he has had scarcely a free moment since he came home nearly two weeks ago.

"Girl friends! I've had one date since I got back," said Kelly.

SIAMESE TWINS EXPIRE AFTER 6-DAY BATTLE

By Edward F. Creagh.
Phoenixville, Pa., May 6 (AP)—To Joyce and Sandra Stierly, "tiny blonde girls doomed never to have a separate existence, death came as a release today from the bonds that joined them at their birth six days ago.

Joyce, the larger and apparently stronger, ceased her labored breathing shortly after midnight and Sandra, whose circulatory weakness foretold an early end to the struggle for life, died a few minutes later.

Theirs was the only birth of Siamese twins ever recorded in Pennsylvania and the way in which their gaunt bodies were joined—with heads at opposite ends of the crib—was said by doctors to be almost unprecedented anywhere.

Young Widowed Mother
The twins' widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Stierly, 24, who wept when she learned how their bodies were linked, wasn't to be told of their death until later today. Her husband, Harold, was killed in a motorcycle accident two months ago.

Dr. J. Elmer Gotwals, who delivered the twins, said they contracted pneumonia although hot water bottles and electric heating pads surrounded them from the first.

Their temperature during the last hours rose to 105.2 and their weight, nearly 12 pounds when they were born last Sunday morning, dropped below eight pounds.

Sandra was fed a condensed milk formula from an eye-dropper.

Dr. Gotwals said the twins were joined "end to end with a common pelvic area. Running out perpendicularly from one side of the pelvic area was one leg which had been fused together from two legs. This fused leg tapered down to a tiny heel and a single tiny toe."

Obviously, the doctor said, they never could have walked, although the outer legs were normal, nor could they ever have been separated. At no time was there any expectation that they would live.

You'll find that if you come to be master of it, and really do a good job of driving the car, you'll be surprisingly effective with a car that has better natural handling.

What's On Your Mind?

Q Every few days the generator of my car stops charging. When this happens I merely clean the armature and the generator is as good as new again. New brushes do not seem to help F. F. W.

A. There may be a condition known as high mica. That is, the mica insulation between the bars becomes so high that it is flush with them. Thus the brushes do not make good contact, current arcing so as to blacken the commutator. But the burned appearance of the commutator may also be due to using brushes of the wrong material or even of the wrong size. An open or short circuit in the generator winding will have a similar effect.

Q I have a valve tap in my engine. What must I do to get rid of it, or will it be alright to leave it alone? C. U.

A. If a tap is due to excessive taper clearance this will increase in efficiency and waste gas. Take up the excess clearance in accordance with the manufacturers' specifications. If the tap is due to a warped valve head or to a bent valve stem a valve grinding job is the answer.

Usually tapping is not serious, but you want to be sure what is causing it.

Q The engine of my car seems to be operating hotter I suspected that the heat indicator might be lying, but find that temperature really is higher. Nothing seems to explain the increase. Had the cooling system flushed, timing checked and carburetor adjusted. H. M. N.

Lake St. Marys is one of a series of great reservoirs built in Ohio about a century ago to protect urban and farm dwellers from the ravages of swollen streams. Today they are gathering points for sportsmen and vacationists.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY
"The Sullivans," 20th Century-Fox's rich, robust story of the American family that became—in one shining hour—a family of great Americans, comes to the screen of the Majestic Theatre on Monday and Tuesday with Anne Baxter and Thomas Mitchell heading the featured cast which also includes Seena Royle, Edward Ryan, Trudy Marshall, John Campbell, James Cardwell, John Alvin and George Offerman, Jr.

The film was directed by Lloyd Bacon and produced by Sam Jaffe, with Robert T. Kane associate producer.

WEDNESDAY
Theme of RKO Radio's "Tarzan's Desert Mystery," newest of the popular series produced by Sol Lesser, is international intrigue in the remote inner Sahara desert. The swift and exciting action, constantly mounting in tempo, finds Tarzan and his friends collaborating with a beautiful woman of mystery to frustrate Nazi agents who seek to foment Arab uprisings.

Johnny Weissmuller, as Tarzan, and Johnny Sheffield as "Boy" leave their favorite jungle for the desert to get a medicinal herb. They find themselves in the midst of spreading intrigue because Tarzan pauses to rescue a beautiful Arab stallion from the toils of a brutal Nazi agent. Nancy Kelly plays the feminine lead.

THURSDAY
Heralded as among the greatest films of the year, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," starring Lynn Bari, Akim Tamiroff, Francis Lederer, with Louis Calhern, Donald Woods, Alla Nazimova, in prominent roles, plays at the Majestic Theatre on Thursday through United Artists release.

Lynn Bari, starring as the exotic dancer "Perichole," gives a moving performance as the woman who rose from street dancer to consort of the Viceroy of Peru. Co-starring with her are Akim Tamiroff, turning in the greatest performance of his already great career as lovable, shrewd Uncle Pio, and Francis Lederer returning to the screen in a dual role as the twins Manuel and Esteban.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

A picture with a story that film fans will be laughing at and talking about for a long time after they have seen it at the Majestic Theatre is Paramount's "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" co-starring Eddie Bracken and Betty Hutton, with Diana Lynn, William Demarest and Porter Hall. It is said to be one of the most uniquely funny movies ever made.

Written and directed by Preston Sturges, whose reputation for originality is second to no one's, "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" tells the story of a small-town girl, Betty Hutton, who, against her policeman father's orders, attends a dance given for soldiers. She talks her devoted swain, Bracken, into going to the movies alone while she goes off to dance with the local hero in khaki. Eddie, a civilian, is a very unhappy boy because his high blood pressure has kept him out of the service.

LADY IN A WHIRL

Chapter 8

The man turned his head, which was adorned with a remarkably luxuriant growth of red whiskers, and regarded the car and its occupants. Then he stood up in the cart and the women saw, to their relief, that he was clothed from the waist down in a pair of ragged trousers. After much exhortation and cracking of the whip, he got the oxen to the roadside, and Zelda managed to get by. He made them courteously bow as they passed.

"Can you imagine," Cora said. "He's been here for years. I used to see him when I came up here with your mother when you were a baby. He was a young man then. Just out of college."

"He's not bad looking," Zelda said.

"No. He had some funny notions. I remember. He wouldn't eat any meat. And he had a funny name. I've forgotten it now."

A few minutes later they reached the cottage. Sam and Eglantine, who had seen the car approaching, were on the steps to greet them.

"My, you've got it looking nice already," Zelda told them as she entered the house.

While Cora went to the kitchen to see about lunch, Zelda wandered around the place. There was a wide porch that ran around three sides of the cottage, with steps leading up to a sun deck. The view was magnificent. Nearly every window framed a picture of distant mountain peaks and sun-speckled valley.

As Zelda gazed out over this expanse, the ox cart over into sight. When they reached the driveway the beasts came to a relieved halt; the bearded driver jumped down and approached the house.

"Ah, a caller already. Well Cora can entertain him," Zelda giggled to herself and casually retreated.

After a while Cora came upstairs.

"Say, that man we passed was here. He stopped in to get acquainted. He's real nice."

"Did you find out his name?" Cora snickered. "It's Oh Be Thankful Duncan," she said.

"Goodness!"

"And the trooper O'Brien telephoned. He's going to stop in some afternoon."

"We're right in the social swing already, aren't we?" said Zelda.

"And Sam says Pete called this morning and we hadn't arrived yet. I'll call him back."

"Maybe we can lure him up here."

"Oh, he'll be up," Cora assured her. "He said he'd come."

The week passed quietly. O'Brien paid them the promised visit, and Pete called every day from New York.

"We certainly are living a safe and sane life," Zelda remarked one afternoon. She and Cora were sitting on the porch. Cora contentedly guzzling a chocolate milk.

"You know," said Cora, "a person needs a rest like this once in a while. I'm looking forward to a long, quiet summer."

"Oh, yes?" said Zelda after a minute, her brown eyes intent on a moving object down the mountain. "Here comes that nut again."

Cora pushed her glasses into place. "What nut?"

"Your boy friend. That Oh Be Thankful person."

Cora snorted. "He's no boy friend of mine—but anyway don't think you ought to call him a nut. He's just slightly eccentric. I find him very interesting. You'd be surprised—"

"You're the one who's going to be surprised," Zelda interrupted. "No good comes of having anything to do with a man like that. He's not balanced. There's no telling what ideas he'll get into his head."

"Shucks!" scoffed Cora. "You forget I'm not a child. Maybe he is slightly queer—"

Zelda laughed. "Queer! If a person who wears practically no clothes—not even in winter—and who lives on raw vegetables like a rabbit, and rides around the country in a contraption like that—she pointed to the approaching ox team—"and who lets his children run around without any clothes at all—well, if he's only queer, what on earth would a man have to do to be crazy?"

"Goodness, I don't believe all those stories. That's just a lot of gossip."

The oxen reached the driveway and stopped. Oh Be Thankful Duncan leaped lightly from the cart and came up the path, beaming on the ladies.

"I really think he's quite romantic looking," said Cora in a stage-whisper.

"Good afternoon, ladies," he greeted them.

Zelda said, "Good afternoon, and then went inside."

Oh Be Thankful seated himself on the top step, and Cora offered him a glass of iced chocolate.

"I never drink trash, my dear," he assured her. "Nothing but good old Adam's ale for me. There's nothink like it. Nothink!"

Then the telephone rang and Cora heard Zelda answer it. She talked for a few moments and called Cora.

"Here's Pete on the wire. He wants me to come into Stockton tomorrow," Zelda said in a loutish tone. "Some friend of his is giving a concert there."

"Why, of course. How nice."

"But that means you'll be here all day alone, because I've a ready told Sam and Eglantine they can have the day off."

"Well, what of it?"

"I don't like the idea," Zelda said. She frowned in the direction of placid Oh Be Thankful on the porch. "Well, all right," she said hesitantly into the phone.
